Meeting the challenges of Agriculture and Forestry with Commissioner Bob Odom

Department of Agriculture and Forestry Enforcement Supervisor Doyle Volentine recently received special recognition from FBI director Louis Freeh for outstanding work on theft cases that resulted in the arrest and conviction of seven people.

"Doyle has assisted the FBI in several cases where more than $3 million worth of Louisiana timber was stolen from landowners and sold for profit by criminals," Commissioner of Agriculture and Forestry Bob Odom said.

"Because of Doyle's efforts, strong cases were built against numerous individuals who now paying for their crimes," Odom added.

Freeh complimented Volentine's work on the cases in his recognition certificate.

"The FBI extends its appreciation for your outstanding assistance in a joint investigative effort," Freeh wrote. "Your contributions were immeasurable, and you have the gratitude of the FBI for all you did to help accomplish the objectives of the investigation. You can be proud of the role you played, and I join my associates with whom you worked in congratulating you on a job well done."

Volentine said he has been involved in ongoing timber theft investigations during the past 3 years with FBI Special Agent Mike Ronanyne.

In 1997, Volentine worked with the Eastern District of the FBI in Lufkin, Texas, in a case involving James Anderson of Whitehouse, Texas, and Dean Hodge of Smithland, Texas. After "mistakenly" cutting prime Louisiana timber when they were supposedly logging cutover land, the two were convicted of conspiracy to transport and sell stolen goods in interstate commerce, and of transporting and selling goods in interstate commerce. In addition, Dean Hodge was convicted of four counts of bank fraud.

Christopher Garner, 40, of Greenwood, south of Shreveport, pled guilty to participating in the theft ring and turned state's evidence in the trial of Anderson and Dean Hodge.

In another case, Volentine again worked with the Eastern District FBI to arrest north Louisiana businessman Raymond Hodge of Vivian. Hodge was ordered to pay $331,211 restitution and sentenced to 15 months in prison for his role in a timber theft ring involving his brother, Sam Hodge, and Jeffrey Scott Clayborn of Shreveport.

According to reports, the three men cut and sold timber belonging to Louisiana landowners without ever giving final payment to the owners. The timber was then transported to several mills, including one in Texas.

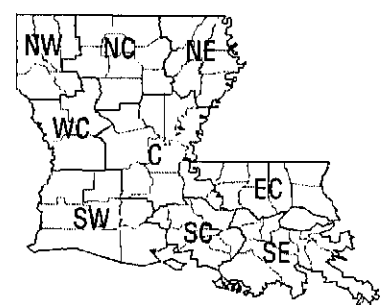

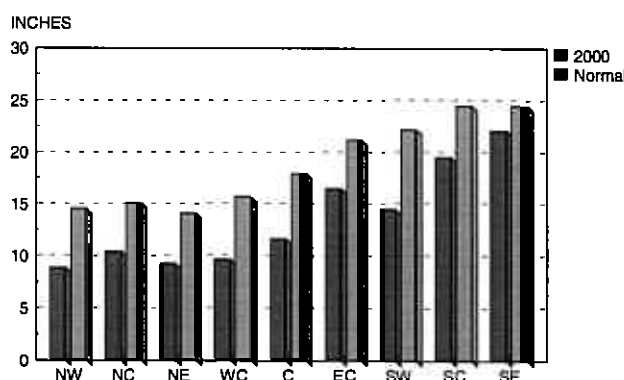

Clayborn was sentenced to 30 months in prison, three years of probation and ordered to pay restitution in excess of $1.3 million to 60 landowners. Sam Hodge was sentenced to five months in prison, five months of home detention and ordered to pay restitution of $276,641.

National Little Britches Rodeo Queen Amanda Smith talks rodeo with Commissioner of Agriculture and Forestry Bob Odom. Smith, the 14-year-old daughter of David and Robin Smith of Eunice, is the first young woman from Louisiana to hold the title of National Little Britches Rodeo Queen. She will be an ambassador for the Little Britches Rodeo Association on a local, state and national level for the coming year. For a personal appearance by Smith, call 337-546-6492.

Record heat compounds problems of severe statewide drought

by Jay Grymes, State Climatologist

With record and near-record heat along with a string of weeks with below-average rainfall, the summer of 2000 only served to intensify drought conditions for many Louisiana parishes. Although La Nina - blamed by many for the two-year drought - is finally breaking up, the effects of the prolonged drought will likely persist into the upcoming year.

From a statewide perspective, rainfall for the summer (June through September) averaged just 13.72", or 72% of normal. The four-month ranks as the 11th 'driest'

June-thru-September on record, and the 'driest' since 1990. Rains were especially short across the northern half of the state, where most parishes recorded less than two-thirds of normal for the period. For the year, Louisiana's area-average rain total of 32" is more than 11" behind the long-term average.

Rains during June were generally near-normal to above-normal across the state, but the persistent dry weather pattern of the past two years returned for the remainder of summer. July and August rains were generally 2" to 3" below normal statewide, with several parishes reporting less than half the norm over the two-month period. A number of northern parishes reported less than 1" of rain for each month, resulting in record or near-record low totals for July and August.

September also proved to be a 'dry' month across much of Louisiana. Monthly totals across the northern two-thirds of the state typically ranged from 1" to 5". September accumulations were unique events. One was an auction, selling donated products from other states. The proceeds from the auction went into the scholarship fund. The NMNA presents a $2500.00 scholarship to a freshman college student who is in agriculture. The auction raised $2500.00. The second event was "Turkey Carving" at the banquet. The main course at the banquet was smoked turkey. The person sitting opposite the turkey got to carve and serve the turkey to others at their table.
